Please see the comment highlighted in red and she was appointed to a board by a council member and she feel this way about the former City Attorney.

Big East Point news today - the historic civic block that many of us have been trying to save has just been announced as one of the Georgia Trust's 2015 Places in Peril (which is a good thing) This area is crucial to the city's identity and future plans as a tourism and film destination, as well as just making our downtown an attractive place to live/work/play. Here is the announcement from the East Point Preservation Alliance (EPPA):

We are pleased to share some very good news for East Point. Our Historic Civic Block was one of ten properties chosen for the Georgia Trust for Historic Preservation's 2015 Places in Peril listing, released earlier today!

This listing will not only shed some much-needed media attention on the buildings, but will also mean that we'll now have the support and guidance of preservation professionals in implementing a preservation plan for the Civic Block. We at the East Point Preservation Alliance cannot express just how excited we are for this huge opportunity.

We want to extend our deepest gratitude to all who have supported our mission to save our City's historic buildings and remind everyone that the fight is far from over. A Places in Peril listing does not obligate the City to take any action towards restoring or preserving the Historic Civic Block. Here's what you can do to help Save the Block:

- visit our website, www.preserveeastpoint.org, to learn more about the buildings and what you can do to help save them

- contact your City Councilpersons and the Mayor and let them know that you want these buildings saved, renovated and used by the Citizens: <http://www.eastpointcity.org/index.aspx?NID=31>

- place a Save the Block sign in your yard to show support. Let us know that you want one and we can either place it in your yard for you or drop it off at your request.

- follow us on twitter: <https://twitter.com/preserveep>

- follow us on tumblr: <http://eastpointpreservationalliance.tumblr.com/>

- order a t-shirt by sending an email to info@preserveeastpoint.org with your preferred color and size. We will be starting our second t-shirt drive in the coming weeks with new designs, so stay tuned!

- donate to the cause: <https://www.paypal.com/cgi-bin/webscr...>

Craig Dominey Curt Rush EPPA has some suggestions in the post above. I'm sure Georgia Trust will have official suggestions on how to best work with the city and elected officials.

This all makes it more official which is good, Those of us who work in film/tourism at the state level have been wanting to be invited into the discussion and this helps us do that.

Curt Rush Craig, thanks. That whole little park/library locale looks like anytown USA. I love that GA and ATL and EP are seeing such good film action.

Craig Dominey Sure does - unfortunately the city lost an opportunity from The Sundance Channel, who offered to clean up/remediate the old library to use as a permanent location (as a police department) for their series "The Red Road." After running into too many roadblocks they left for Kennesaw. Let's make sure that doesnt happen again. Plus there have been numerous companies that wanted to use the Auditorium. Film companies want historic buildings with character, not necessarily the shiny and new.

Randy Lauscher That's really disappointing about the library-film opportunity the city had.
