ATTORNEY GENERAL

Two candidates—State Sen. Jen Jordan (D-Atlanta) and former Fulton County Assistant District Attorney Christian Wise Smith—are running for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General.

State Sen. Jordan was elected in 2017 and has served two full terms and a partial term. The 2017 Special Election was held after then-incumbent State Sen. Hunter Hill (R-Atlanta) ran for Governor of Georgia.

State Sen. Jordan previously worked for the Bondurant Mixson & Elmore law firm, raising serious questions about whether she would advance the public interest as Attorney General.

Since at least the 1980's, the Bondurant law firm has developed a reputation for decades of defending local governments across the State of Georgia in their efforts to be nontransparent to their citizens and taxpayers.

As previously reported by Atlanta Progressive News, the BME law firm is currently representing the City of Atlanta in defending open meetings and open records violations, making hundreds of thousands of dollars off of City of Atlanta taxpayers while taking positions against the public interest.
